ABOUT

Rudy has represented both public and private entities in a broad range of matters involving: bankruptcy; Medicaid fraud; personal injury; insurance defense; construction defects; slip and falls; home health care licensing; Texas Association of School Boards (TASB) policies; school district employment contracts; license revocations for nursing and Medicaid providers; State of Texas procurement contracts; administrative hearings; hotel, amusement services, franchise, motor vehicle, mixed beverage, cigarette, and sales and use tax.

The son of Haitian immigrants, Rudy is the first generation in his family to graduate from college in addition to public policy school and law school. He has been a tireless advocate in the community, speaking and working on a host of issues ranging from teaching at-risk children, co-authoring an honor code for the University of Texas, helping form a partnership with local law enforcement and the State Bar to address the issue of community policing, and creating pro bono legal advice clinics for U.S. military veterans. He has been recognized numerous times as one of the most influential young professionals in Texas.

Rudy and his wife Letisha are the parents of three, yes three, daughters: Celeste, Arielyn, and Brooklyn.
